DETAILED ACTION

Priority

1. Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d), which papers have been placed of record in the file.

Specification

2. The abstract of the disclosure is objected to because it is a copy of the PCT abstract, which does not conform. Correction is required. See MPEP § 608.01(b).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

4. Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Hack (WO 91/04684).

In regard to claim 5, Hack teaches a set of socks (figure 3) having holes located near the open end of each sock wherein the holes enable to attach the socks to one another by inserting each closed end of each sock through the hole of the other sock and pulling out the closed ends of the socks (page 2, lines 13-19).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

Art Unit: 3765

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hack.

In regard to claim 1, Hack teaches a method of attaching articles of clothing to one another each article has a hole located near the open end of the article (figure 3). The method comprising the steps of inserting a first side of the first article through the hole of the second article (figure 3). Pulling out the first side of the first article through the second side of the second article (figure 3). The sock of Hack is capable of pulling the second side of the second article through the first side of the first article, since both the first and second sock articles having an aperture capable of receiving the body of the opposite sock (page 2, lines 13-19).

In regard to claim 2, Hack teaches the first article is a first sock of a matched pair of socks and the second article is a second sock of the matched pair of socks (figure 3).

In regard to claim 3, Hack fails to teach the hole of the sock having a circular shape.

It would have been obvious to have provided the hole of each sock article being in a circular shape or a rectangular shape, because as long as the sock article has a hole the shape of the hole can be selected from many well known shapes and as supported in Applicant's specification on page 3, lines 9-14.

In regard to claim 4, Hack teaches the hole of the socks having a rectangular shape (2).

Art Unit: 3765

Hack teaches all the structure as required by the method and therefore the article of Hack is capable of being used in the method of claims 1-4.

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Sepessy, Treiber, Poole, Chesebro, Jacovitz, Largent, Pappas, Reed, Knox et al., Jones, Foster, Imahata, Yungkurth, Messman, Poole and Ferguson are all cited to show closely related garment articles.
